ELEANOR OYSTON

Twenty Years to become an Overnight Success

This presentation describes my story of oncology tactile therapies and cancer. 'In-hospital' services began with a Bowen treatment for the spouse of a CEO of a major cancer hospital.

The presentation will address:

- The slow and consistent growth of the acceptance of tactile therapies by the community
- How research influences a growing acceptance of integrative practices
- How a patient's experience influences care givers, nurses and doctors
- Obstacles and barriers to our inclusion in the medical community
- How national and international acceptance varies globally
- Australian training standards are 'second to none'... be proud and confident.
