

Eleanor Oyston

After over 30 years in science and medical technology, diagnosing cancer, Eleanor attained a Dip Remedial Massage and studied Bowen Therapy with Russell Sturgess.

Eleanor has:

- Taught in Australia, New Zealand, Germany, Hong Kong, Spain, the Netherlands.
- Presented at international conferences in Australia, Munich Germany, Minneapolis US and Barcelona, Spain.
- Developed in-hospital training at the Olivia Newton John Centre, Melbourne and the Life House, RPA, in Sydney

In 2015 Eleanor approached Western Sydney University, NICM. Prof Caroline Smith and Dr Jennifer Hunter embraced Eleanor's ideas and together they undertook a major research project, mapping CM services for cancer patients around Australia. In 2017 Oncology Massage Global (OMG) was established. OMG = international consultancy designed to inform the development of oncology massage in hospitals and general practice clinics based on Eleanor's experience.
